About the Artist

Born in Bangalore in 1960, B.V Suresh acquired his training first at the Ken School of Arts, Bangalore and M.S.University, Baroda, and later from the Royal College of Art, London. He represents a range of images from diverse sources including comic books, hoardings, newspapers, television, films, advertisements; the images that constitute everyday visual experience of many people. In his more recent works, whether digital prints, video, or painting, Suresh offers a nuanced exploration of some of the key issues that confront us today, most prominently, the growing culture of communalism and violence we are faced with. Through these works, the artist questions history and its modes of narration, and also, the circulation of images engendered by mass media. B.V.Suresh has exhibited his work in prominent venues in Kolkata, Baroda, Mumbai, New Delhi, and New York. He lives and works in Baroda.
